

Shaazka Beyerle is Senior Fellow at the Terrorism, Transnational Crime and Corruption Center (TraCCC), Schar School of Public Policy and Government, George Mason University.

She's a researcher, writer and educator in nonviolent action, focusing on anti-corruption, accountability, peacebuilding, gender and human rights.

She was previously a Senior Research Advisor and Jennings Randolph Senior Fellow, Program on Nonviolent Action, U.S. Institute of Peace, and is the author of Curtailing Corruption: People Power for Accountability and Justice.

Most recently, she co-authored a chapter on enabling civil society and social movements in "Untapped Power: Leveraging Diversity and Inclusion for Conflict and Development" (Oxford University Press 2022).

She was the lead researcher for a World Bank-Nordic Trust Fund project and co-author of the subsequent report, "Citizens as Drivers of Change: Practicing Human Rights to Engage with the State and Promote Transparency and Accountability."

She teaches and speaks at conferences, workshops and webinars, most recently in 2022 as an Adjunct Faculty at George Mason University.

She twice served as an elected member of the UNCAC Civil Society Coalition Coordination Committee, with the latest term ending June 2022.